

I am Chris Kgasago

Hi there, I am Chris Kgasago and I am proud to be a part of Pam Golding Properties in Johannesburg South. I take great pride in what I do and I have the relevant skills and qualifications to be in the real estate industry. I'm an honest, humble and hardworking individual that strives to give my clients the best possible service. I've obtained a Bachelors in Admin Degree, a Post Graduate Diploma of Business Administration and I am currently working towards my NQF 4 in real estate.

I'm married and blessed with 5 beautiful and handsome children. I truly enjoy working in this industry with its daily challenges and volatile market trends. Prior to working with Pam Golding Properties I worked in the banking industry in the early eighties as a casual employee when I was a student. My first job after graduating was in a petrochemical industry in both the operations and sales department. After leaving the petrochemical industry I joined the telecommunication organisation where I provided service to consumers as well as schools and hospitals.

I managed community projects in areas where there was absolutely no telecommunication infrastructure. I then progressed to a corporate government sales department where I was responsible for providing service to provincial government departments as well as the South African National Defence Force and Armscor. The Real Estate industry caught my interest and attention with real growth despite the challenges it encounters due to temporal market volatility.

Standard, poor and moody service has downgraded the country's economic status which is affecting the growth. I have joined the Real Estate industry so that I can contribute significantly to both intrinsically and extrinsically for my personal growth. I am really enjoying myself and look forward to having a good and thorough understanding so that I can be a better and competent estate agent. Get in touch and let's discuss how I can help you with your property requirements.
