

The Index October 2014

21 April 2015

An updated review on the performance of the local residential market as the domestic economic recovery continues to gather momentum.

“With expectations of a modest strengthening in economic growth, coupled with an easing in the inflation rate and a very gradual series of interest rate hikes, and further fuelled by on-going positive sentiment, the outlook for the country’s residential market is positive”

Dr. Andrew Golding, Chief Executive, The PamGolding Property Group

The Index is unique as it portrays an accurate, holistic snapshot of property pricing trends in the South African residential real estate market, rather than a confined view based purely on average sales data according to very specific market segments.
